the papers in this volume examine the current role of grammatical functions in transformational syntax in two ways i through largely theoretical considerations of their status and ii through detailed analyses for a wide variety of languages taken together the chapters in this volume present a comprehensive view of how transformational syntax characterizes the elusive but often useful notions of subject and object examining how subject and object properties are distributed among various functional projections converging sometimes in particular languages

this book provides original fieldwork data uniquely generating all malagasy deverbal nominals from a single structure building mechanism allowing variable syntactic attachment heights for different nominalizers and tracing the derivation of participant nominals to a relative clause source includes papers that explore the issues and re assess generally accepted premises on the relationship between lexical meaning and the morphosyntax of sentences by confronting two competing approaches to this issue
